From Nightingale to Corius Seal Dressing

Prometheus Medical has recently become part of the Safeguard Medical organisation. Safeguard unites a group of businesses that specialise in products and services dedicated to saving lives. The change in product is essentially a change in packaging to incorporate the new branding and new name of the dressing.

The EEAST clinical indication for use remains the same as the Nightingale dressing.

The Corius Seal™ is a non-sterile adhesive hydrogel wound dressing, indicated to cover and protect acute major thoracic wounds, whilst absorbing wound exudate. This occlusive wound dressing is the same size and the Corius Seal™ has the ability to cover both large and small wounds, with a borderless design allowing multiple devices to be used by placing them edge to edge. The dressing features removable silicone coated plastic liners, allowing users to apply easily to patients.

For ordering purposes the catalogue code remains the same, D152 and all new orders will result in delivery of a Corius seal. Please continue to use the Nightingale dressing, the Corius will naturally replace and supersede the Nightingale.
